

Interfaith Conference 2019

Gender, Spirituality and Religion Endangering or Engendering?

In the public discourse religions do more harm than good with respect to rights of women, stereotype gender roles, and sexual minorities. But this is not the whole story. Religions and worldviews are superdiverse.

What does the interreligious and intra-religious dialogue look like regarding these issues? What does feminism and masculinity mean in discussions about gender and faith?

Keynote speaker

Anne Dijk is keynote speaker of the conference. She is an Islamic theologian with a specialisation in structures of authority including gender and authority in Islam. Dijk is also founder and director of Fahm Institute. This independent organisation aims to create a better understanding about Islam and Islamic related issues. She is also involved in interfaith relations.

The annual Interfaith Conference invites you to an open-minded interaction with people from different walks of life.
